

How to join Indian Menopause Society

There are many doctors, who would like to be active members of Indian Menopause society. You could become a member by any of the following ways

1. If you have a menopause society in your town, contact the president of the society, pay membership fee,, either through local society, or through the centre. Names of presidents of societies/secretaries of chapters are there on the website, in the section, "Office Bearers"

It is possible to download the membership form, take a print out and physically pay through DD to centre or to local society. It is also possible to pay through the online portal available on the website. However, after submission of online registration and filling online membership form, please notify the local society president or Mr. Paresh, executive secretary, whose phone number is provided in the downloadable membership form provided in the website.

2. Find a society nearest to your location and become a member of that society, through any of the ways, as mentioned above.
3. Form a society in your town on your own. Guidelines for forming a society are given in the website. Inform the IMS president/secretary of your intention.
